Our Legacy

Robbins Gioia was founded in 1980 to focus on helping government customers avoid common sources of failure in implementing major programs. Our founders reasoned that by providing strong professional program management skills, fully independent of any conflicts of interest, they could provide a critical program oversight role and become trusted advisors to their clients. This basic vision, enhanced over the years by the addition of services related to key success drivers in technology and people performance, has produced consistently superior results and long-standing relationships with many client organizations in Federal Government departments and agencies, selected State Government organizations and leading private sector clients.

Throughout this period RG has provided valuable assistance to clients in defining and aligning goals to achieve success, designing and implementing program management offices and skills to guide the implementation of major programs and initiatives, defining and implementing optimized processes and support systems needed to manage those processes, and developing strategies and programs to assist with the human aspect of implementing major new initiatives.

Our commitment to sustain and build upon this focus on results and our position as a trusted professional advisor has never been stronger. We believe that the growing demands and pressures faced by our clients will continue to require the breadth of unique capabilities and dedication to excellence that RG represents.
